

Darkness came over the land and the first born child of every Egyptian family died, including Pharaoh's son.

Pharaoh freed the slaves and God had truly won. Moses then began to lead the slaves to their new life and land.

God had spoken to the shepherd Moses through a burning bush.

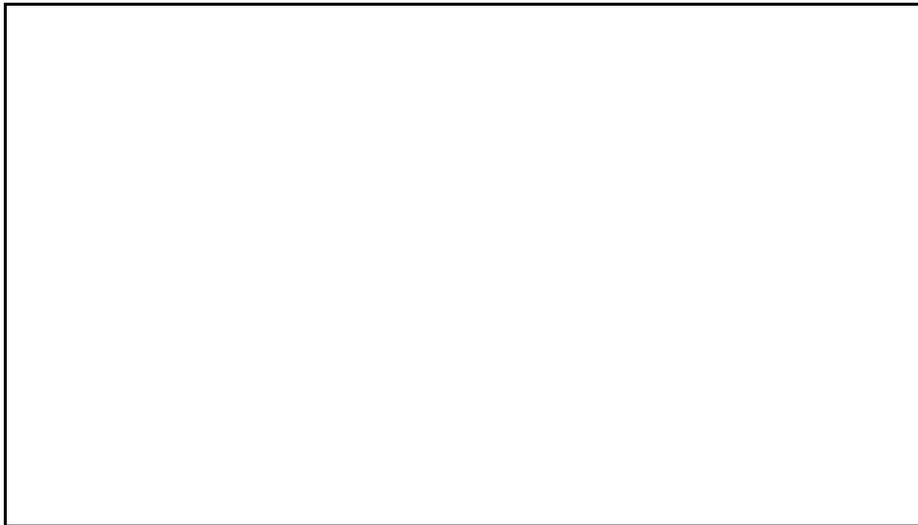

He told Moses to demand from the Pharaoh of Egypt that all God's people would be set free. He made Moses their leader.

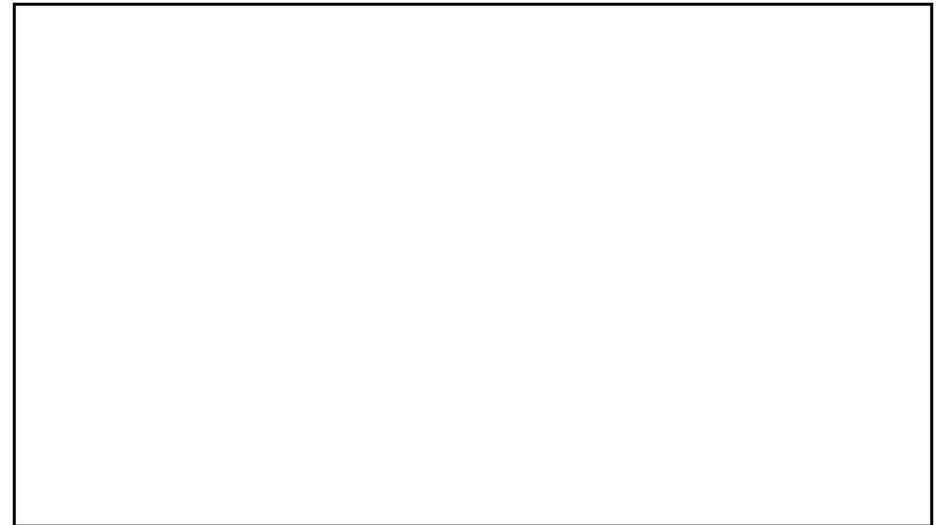

Moses asked Pharaoh to release the slaves.
But Pharaoh did not believe in God.

He sent a plague of frogs and gnats, flies boils and dead animals.

God turned the Nile into blood.

When Pharaoh said the slaves could go it turned out he lied so God pummelled Egypt with fire and hail.
